

Careers in the Transportation, Distribution & Logistics Cluster can be as varied as flying a wide-bodied jet and managing the movement of fresh fruit between producers and consumers. What they all have in common, however, is moving things from one place to another—be they people, products, or raw materials. Whether it means arriving at the destination safely and on time, solving a complex logistical problem, or diagnosing and fixing a broken car engine, people who succeed in this area enjoy getting things done. This critical Cluster is expected to experience substantial growth in the coming years.
