Introduction

In an effort to identify, develop, and retain qualified and engaged leaders, the Hall County School District has worked collaboratively to develop a comprehensive set of leadership foundations, standards, and competencies to ensure clarity around the performance expectations of all leaders in the district. This document includes the Hall County School District Leadership Foundations, which set the expectations for every leader, and the Hall County School District Leadership Standards and Competencies that set forth the work of every leader in a set of behaviors that describe superior performance.

There are eight performance standards modeled after the Leader Keys Effectiveness System (LKES) standards identified by the Georgia Department of Education. This focus ensures alignment with our state department while affording the opportunity to demonstrate the distinctive character of leadership in Hall County School District that will strengthen the leadership legacy of our district. The competencies define leadership in HCSD by describing what exemplary practice looks like on the job, helping leaders internalize expectations, providing a self-assessment vehicle for individuals, and serving as an organizational tool for leadership development to monitor and align continuous improvement. The concepts extend across leadership positions. By approaching leadership development through competencies and skill development, we can determine which positions require which competencies because the skills needed may change based on the leadership level in the district.

A special thanks to the Georgia Leadership Institute for School Improvement (GLISI) for their partnership in developing this important work.
In alignment with the district’s mission of character, competency, and rigor for all, Hall County leaders exemplify the following foundational practices:
